

One Bay Resilient Communities Meeting
November 2, 2018

Happy Fall everyone!

We're going to be gearing up to get One Bay meeting more frequently in 2019.

Our next One Bay Meeting will be November 2nd, 1:30 -3:30 pm in our TBRPC office at 4000 Gateway Centre Blvd, Suite 100, Pinellas Park, FL.

We will be discussing two regional resiliency projects. OneBay Agenda

Our new website launched earlier this month, it will take us a little while to update all the links from previous meetings. We now have an interactive calendar of all of TBRPC's meetings that can be used to any of our meetings directly to your calendars. The One Bay web page has been updated to get information from you all, with buttons on the top of the page to get ideas from our local governments regarding:

- future meeting topics, workshops, trainings, etc
- start a running list of potential resiliency related projects that our local governments would like to implement in the future

In the coming days, watch another email from us, we'll be distributing a survey to capture the local governments progress towards Peril of Flood compliance and vulnerabilities, to help inform future One Bay directions.

Speaker coming to USF this week-

Building urban resilience through networks and communities: lessons from Athens, Greece- Friday, October 26th at 2pm. At the University of South Florida, 4600 East Fowler Ave, Tampa. In the Patel Center, CGS 140. Ms. Anthi Christou is part of the Resilience Team of the City of Athens, Greece and will be giving a talk on urban resilience and what lessons can be learned from the Athens, Greece model. Reception to follow.