

March One Bay News

As we move forward and plan One Bay Resilient Community working group efforts for 2019, we really want your input on meeting content and what our local governments need. On our new One Bay webpage, we have a submission form to collect meeting ideas and project ideas. Sometimes grants or pots of money come along with short windows of opportunity, it's easier to reach out if we have a list of potential projects to pull from. We will be working to make sure all the resource links on the One Bay pages are working.

Please Join us for our next One Bay Resilient Communities Meeting.

April 4, 2019 at TBRPC Headquarters
4000 Gateway Centre Blvd, Pinellas Park 33782
1:30-3:30+ pm

Meeting Agenda

New TBRPC Staff

CJ Reynolds has joined TBRPC as Director of Resiliency and Engagement. She will be spearheading the continuing efforts of Tampa Bay Regional Resiliency Coalition.

Cara Woods Serra joins the TBRPC as our Comprehensive Resiliency Planner. She will be providing technical assistance to local governments in the areas of Hazard Mitigation and Resiliency.

Trainings and Workshops

April 5 & 6- Sea Level Rise Up: Realities and opportunities - Suncoast Sea Level Rise Collaborative- St. Pete College, Seminole Campus

News and Tidbits from around the country

Rising seas threaten Norfolk Naval Shipyard, raising fears of 'catastrophic damage'

Branford, CT creates \$1M Coastal Resiliency Fund

Business Resilience calculator under development

Washington State could set scooter share guidelines

Charleston Resilience Network hosted a hackathon in August to develop apps to better enable stakeholders to make informed decisions

Visit our website